

Why do parking fees apply in Albert Park Reserve?

- Parking fees were introduced to Albert Park Reserve in 2006 in response to the increase in parking pressure from commuters working in the city and buildings surrounding the park which impacted on congestion in the park and the availability of parking for visitors wanting to enjoy the park.
- The fees are aligned with parking fees in nearby areas such as St Kilda and Elwood foreshores and have been set to offer the lowest possible fees during peak visitor times, such as week nights and weekends, and include free parking before 8am which is a popular time for walkers and joggers.
- The net revenue generated from parking fees continues to be invested into Albert Park Reserve services and facilities and contributes to the annual sports and recreation club grants program.
