

Mount Arapiles-Tooan State Park - Dyurrite Cultural Landscape

Access Changes Summary

October 2026

A large, ancient tree with a hollowed-out trunk, set against a backdrop of a green field and a cloudy sky. The tree's bark is grey and peeling, and its branches are gnarled and spread out. The hollow in the trunk is dark and deep. The background shows a green field with a fence line and more trees in the distance under a grey, overcast sky.

Acknowledgement of Country

The land we know today as Victoria is a land of extraordinary contrast, from vast deserts to alpine snowfields, ancient rainforests to dormant volcanoes, rugged coastlines and inland waterways. This remarkable diversity is more than scenery; it is a living record of culture, connection, and care that stretches back thousands of generations.

Across the parks and reserves in Victoria lie cultural landscapes shaped by Aboriginal peoples through millennia of knowledge, stewardship, and deep relationship with Country. These places tell stories of resilience, ingenuity, and belonging, stories written not only in books, but in the land itself.

Parks Victoria respectfully acknowledges the Traditional Owners of these lands and waters. We honour their enduring connection to Country and their continuing role as custodians. Together, we commit to protecting and celebrating these landscapes so they remain vibrant for generations to come.

About this Access Changes Summary

This Access Changes Summary is intended as a practical guide of where recreation can and cannot occur within the Dyurrite Landscape from October 2026.

These access arrangements strengthen the protection of Aboriginal cultural heritage while supporting appropriate recreation opportunities within the park. They have been informed by Aboriginal cultural heritage considerations, park management requirements and community feedback received during consultation on the draft Addendum to the Mount Arapiles-Tooan State Park Management Plan in July/August 2026.

This document provides maps and location information to help visitors understand the new access arrangements that apply across the Dyurrite landscape.

Dyurrite is the Wotjobaluk Nations' name for Mount Arapiles and is used throughout the document to describe the landscape.

What visitor needs to know

- From October 2026, opportunities for recreation will continue across many parts of the Dyurrite landscape with access arrangements in place to strengthen the protection of Aboriginal cultural heritage.
- Current voluntary closure areas will be removed and replaced with the new access arrangements.
- The maps and location information in this document show where access is prohibited (including walking, climbing and bouldering).
- Visitors and Licensed Tour Operators are responsible for ensuring they do not enter prohibited areas.
- Temporary or seasonal closures may also occur for reasons such as wildlife protection (i.e. Peregrine Falcon nesting), fire management, park operations, maintenance works or emergency events. These temporary closures operate in addition to the access arrangements outlined in this document.
- Visitors should check current conditions and closures on the Parks Victoria website before visiting the park.

Why access arrangements are in place

Parks Victoria is required to protect Dyurrite's unique cultural and natural heritage for current and future generations while supporting opportunities for access to recreational and other activities in the park.

Under the Aboriginal Heritage Act 2006, avoiding harm to Aboriginal cultural heritage is the preferred management outcome. To support this, Parks Victoria has implemented access arrangements through Set Aside Determinations made under the National Parks Regulations 2024, which operate alongside the National Parks Act 1975, the Aboriginal Heritage Act 2006 and relevant park management plans.

These access arrangements are intended to:

- reduce the risk of harm to Aboriginal cultural heritage
- provide visitors with clear information about where access is and is not permitted
- support compliance with access requirements through signage, maps and visitor information.

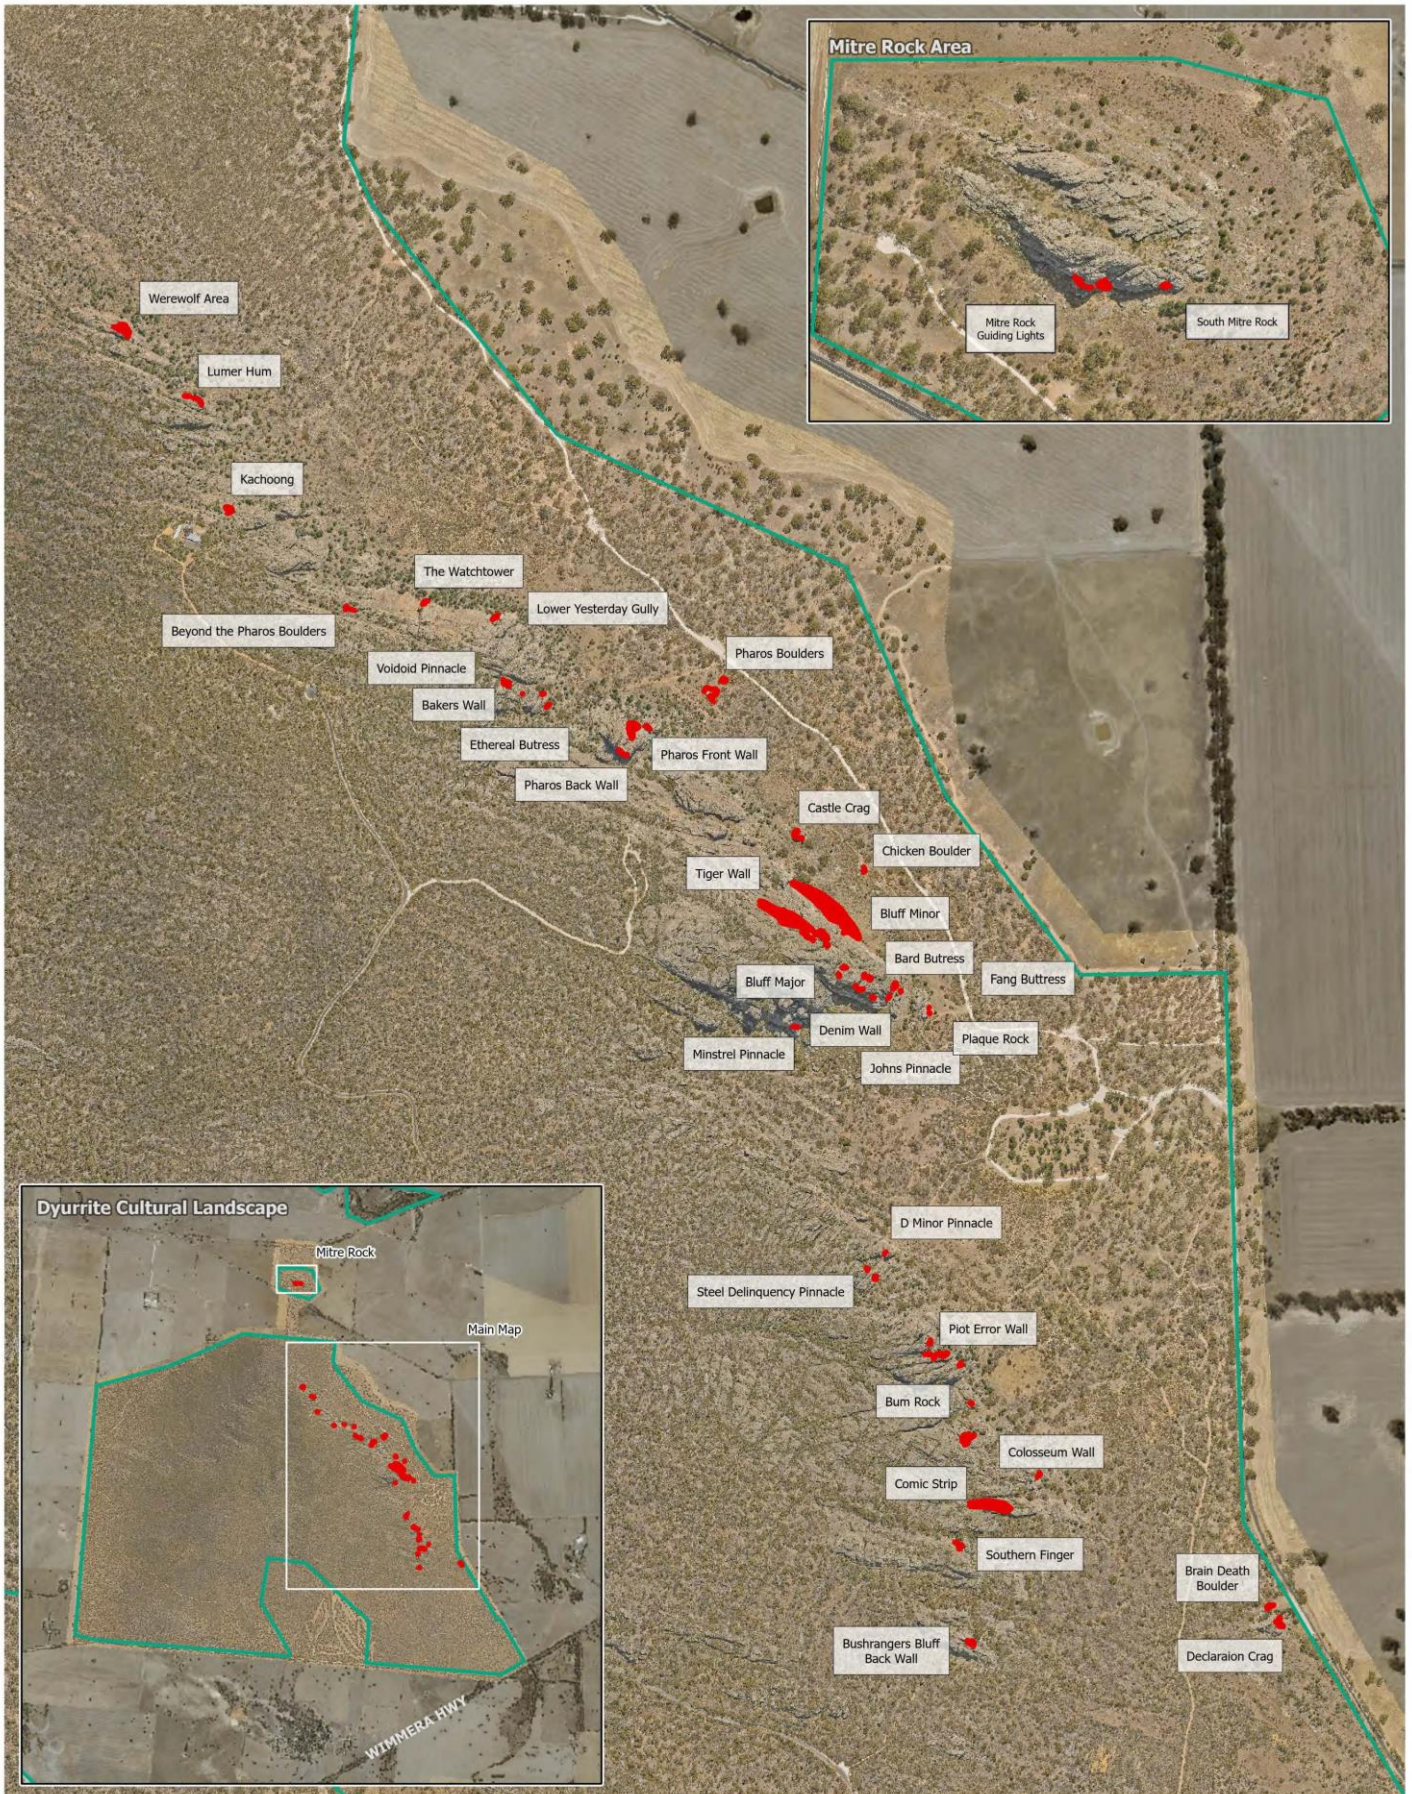

Nothing in this document authorises harm to Aboriginal cultural heritage. Any activity that will, or is likely to, cause harm remains subject to the applicable requirements of the Aboriginal Heritage Act 2006, including Cultural Heritage Permit requirements where relevant.

Maps of Prohibited Areas

This section shows the prohibited access areas that apply across the Dyurrite landscape from October 2026. Maps, coordinates and polygon boundaries identify the areas where access is prohibited.

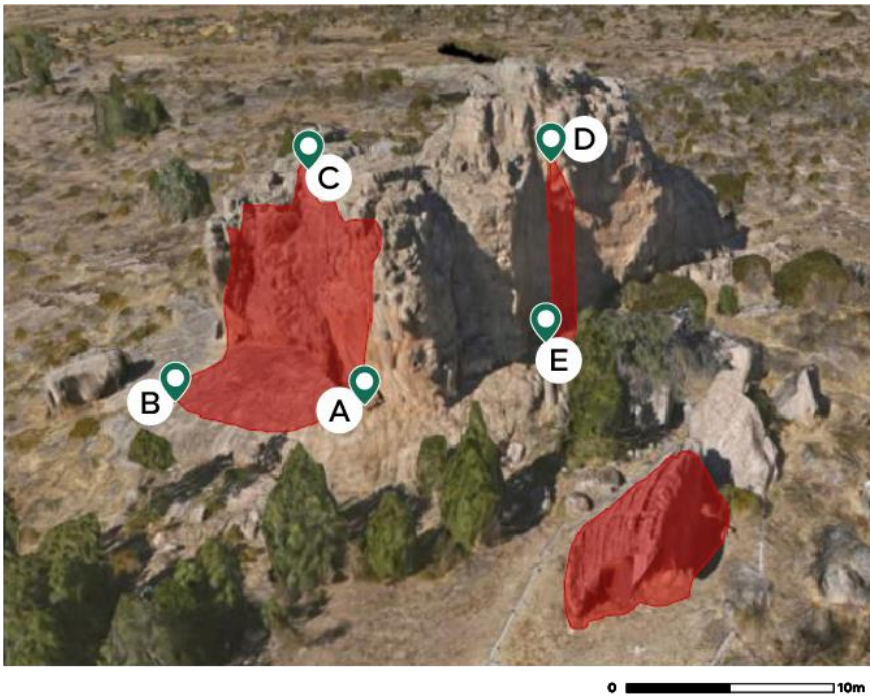

While every effort has been made to identify affected climbing areas and routes, climb names are provided as a guide only and may not be exhaustive. The mapped boundaries and coordinates are the definitive reference for prohibited access areas.

The red polygons represent prohibited access areas within the park. Reference points on the boundaries of these areas are shown with X, Y and Z coordinates. While the X and Y coordinates show the position of each point, the Z coordinate captures its height. This allows the prohibited access areas to be accurately mapped in three dimensions, reflecting the true shape and elevation of the surrounding rock formations.
